Crew of Five Target FedEx Delivery Trucks Carrying Louis Vuitton Merchandise

Over $667,000 of Luxury Merchandise Stolen at Gunpoint

San Diego County District Attorney Summer Stephan announced robbery, theft and carjacking charges against five defendants who worked together to target FedEx delivery trucks containing high-end merchandise from designer brand Louis Vuitton.

Deshawn Birden, 34, Jamal Buck, 33, Stephen Buck, 30, Maurice Cyrus, 29, and Frederick Jackson, 25, have each been charged with several felony counts in relation to the five incidents and face between seven years and four months and life in prison if convicted.

“This crew violently targeted lucrative luxury merchandise transported by FedEx,” DA Stephan said. “Their crime spree is over, and these defendants will begin facing justice and accountability for their bad acts.”

Between July 2024 and June 2025, the defendants stole over $667,000 worth of Louis Vuitton merchandise including sunglasses, handbags, shoes and belts. In one instance, they stole 25 boxes of designer products from the Fashion Valley Shopping Center during a scheduled delivery. In another instance, the driver fought off the gun wielding suspect, forcing the suspect to abandon his plan. On three occasions, the defendants intercepted and car jacked a delivery truck with the use of a firearm as the driver was getting gasoline and drove the truck to a pre-staged area where they were prepared with getaway vehicles to load the stolen merchandise into. In each case they were dressed in clothing that disguised their appearance from head to toe.

None of the merchandise has been recovered.

“These items are stolen with the express purpose of eventually being sold to unsuspecting consumers,” DA Stephan said. “We are grateful to the San Diego Police Department and the FBI for their partnership in this investigation and helping identify the defendants.”

Defendants Stephan Buck and Maurice Cyrus pleaded not guilty at arraignment today and are next due in court on May 14 for a readiness hearing. Buck was released on supervised own recognizance, and Cyrus is being held on no bail. The three additional defendants in this case are awaiting extradition to San Diego and will be arraigned at a future date.

Deputy District Attorney Cassidy McWilliams is prosecuting this case.
